

Registrations closed today (9th May at 6.00pm) so we hope your name is on the list. If not, you might just make it if you contact BCC Management immediately. Many sessions and tours are fully booked and so is the “Mad March” dinner. If you registered early, but are not coming to the dinner, please tell Ros or Katrina now so your place can be reallocated.

Winners – Congratulations to Janet Mattiske (Vic), Helen Whale (NSW) and Wayne Hay (Vic) who knew “city of churches” means that early settlers were free to worship whomever they chose. It also resulted in more than 22 religious groups building churches, most of which are still standing.

“About Time” is the 2014 name for History Month in May, with events on every day. Check their web site for details. Go to <http://abouttime.sa.gov.au/>

About the program – it’s full of interesting presentations and activities so don’t be late and come prepared to join in and have a good time! To help you, we have a check-list so you remember what to bring and make space to take things home.

Publication – the Mayfield Project - Ben, Peter, Laurence, Lynette, Lisa, Hal and Phil have done an excellent job on this production which will be available for purchase at the conference. Get in early for your copy!

Did you know? Adelaide is a “learning city” with three major universities and six smaller branch universities which provides niche market courses. These include the London School of Economics and the Carnegie Mellon University.

Do you know that this Victorian “kit building” is one of a few surviving examples of this style in the world? Where is it, and what is it called?

Regards, the SA Conference Team
